 M.A. Research

I have got an M.A. research in education, majoring in TESOL.

The Research Title:

"The Effect of a Suggested Program Based on Self-Regulated Learning Strategies on Mastering Some Treading Skills among EFL Students"

✚ Research Experiences:

Initially, my research interests are so wide, but generally they are centered on humanities and social sciences. Within this field lies my major and area of interest which is applied linguistics. This field in turn covers a wide range of subfields that are of interest to me to some extent. Mainly, as a teaching assistant at one of Egypt's colleges with a major being TESOL, I have been attracted to the study of human language in general. I have also been greatly interested in the subfield of language acquisition, the linguistic theory, grammar acquisition and the like. My BA in Arts and Education has allowed me to have a good grasp of human language in general and English in particular. This has given me the passion to continue through my postgraduate study routes until I got TWO postgraduate diplomas in Education and about to obtain my MA in TESOL (namely, literacy development for college students). In sum, I hope to continue through the same route of TESOL study to obtain my PhD in applied linguistics so that I developed a humble PhD proposal on this field which I hope will fit into the research domain of the School of Graduate Education.
